

HEAVY GALE.

Encountered by the Halibut Fleet Last Sunday.

Wind Was Heaviest of the Whole Winter Season.

Four of the fresh halibut fleet arrived at this port this morning with an aggregated of 86,000 pounds of fish.

Sch. Atalanta and Annie Greenlaw are from Grand Bank and report speaking sch. Senator and Harvard there, also schs. Nannie C. Bohlin and Monitor on Western Bank.

The Greenlaw met with an accident a week ago last Sunday, breaking the patent rudder head. Capt. McHenry, by means of a couple of boom fishings and three turnbuckle bands, rigged an improvised tiller on the head of the rudder, and connecting it with tackles steered their craft very well until they encountered the heavy gale of last Sunday. For 13 hours the wind blew with terrific fury and was the heaviest tempest of the season. Then it took the united efforts of five of the crew to steer the craft. For five hours the vessel was run under bare poles, and then hove to, and it was at this time that the rudder was the hardest to manage. Fortunately no damage resulted and the "home-made" steering gear brought the Greenlaw safely to port.

Capt. Wadding also reports the southeast gale as one of unusual severity, he having to run his vessel under bare poles.

Sch. Oregon and the new sch. Reliance are from Quero Bank, the latter having been gone but 21 days, and having a fine fare of 28,000 pounds of halibut. Capt. John Stream of the new craft speaks well of her weatherly qualities and had plenty of chance to try her, as the trip has been a rough one.

Both vessels encountered the heavy southeast gale of Sunday, but run it out without damage, although the crews say it was the heaviest wind of the winter. They report speaking sch. Madonna on Quero Bank.

All four of the crafts are considerably iced up and all in report the trip just finished as the hardest of the winter.
